They Can Come Again.

If the Musical Wizard of Wall Street ever cares to wander Wood River way again they may plan to entertain a large house. Their show at the Opera House last Monday evening was well attended. In fact, the people of this vicinity parted with $135.50 and felt when they went home that they had value received. The singing of the company was good, their dancing better and the play was entertaining. If Manager Eaton can book more shows of this grade, his patrons will be satisfied. Wood River, (Neb.)
